Your Childhood Years

Describe yourself as a child:

I was shy, naturally curious, quiet but observant. Creative when it came to using my imagination.

What was it like growing up in your family?

I had siblings I grew up with, and we had many family get togethers and got along well.

What is your earliest memory as a child?

Going to preschool and playing in the sandbox, learning how to properly brush my teeth.

What was your favorite thing to do?

Work on projects, draw, paint, and enjoy the outdoors (camping and fishing).

Your parents taught you to value:

Be respectful and kind to even the ones who aren't, especially your elders.

What you loved most about your mother and why:

She was kind and never gave up. She came from another country, she was trying to adapt and she showed me how to love and nurture.

What you love most about your father and why:

He was smart, and resourceful. He showed me that I am the one who determines my future. If there's a will, there's a way to reach goals in life. He taught me that happiness is what you make of things in life.

In comparison to others you were:

Sensitive and quiet, I was more caring about people emotionally. I thought about life beyond nature, I'd always have infinite "why" questions.

Your Teenage Years

Describe yourself as a teenager:

I was shy, but I got along with many of high school kids of different backgrounds.

Your favorite subject(s) in school and why:

I liked art, math, and science because they came very easy to me.

Your least favorite subject(s) in school and why:

History/Social Studies; because I had very little interest.

The activities you were involved in and why:

Wrestling, because I was always slim, and wanted to change my physical physique.

The most important influence on you and why:

My 9th grade science teacher. He never gave up on any students and wanted to see everyone succeed. He was full of positive encouragement.

In comparison to others you were:

Quiet, respectful. When I was growing up with our culture, we'd always respect our elders regardless of differences.

You were talented at:

I was really talented with arts, painting, drawing. I loved working with clay and physically making something. I was always tinkering with things - taking things a part and then putting them back together.

Your ambition was to:

To do well in school and make the best of my future.
